To the Voters of Orleans County

As the time of the primary elections draws near, it seems fitting that the town of Westmore, which has never been represented in the State Senate should deserve the honor at this time. With the exception of the offices of Side Judge and High Sheriff, this town has never had a county officer in its history.

All the other towns of the county, have been represented in the Senate Barton, who has two (2) candidates for the office, has had four (4) Senators since 1900, the last being as recent as 1919. While the large towns should have due ambition for public office, would it not seem only fair to the voters of Orleans county to be represented occasionally by some of its small towns.

Now Westmore, who comes out with its candidate in the person of Marshall E. Calkins, "a prosperous farmer of this town for many years" ask the support of the large towns.
